Overview Of Mac '93 - '94

Jane Hall is Finished!

by J.P. Ziller

How many more days are Jane Hall residents going to wake up to the morning sounds of a jackhammer, someone banging on pipes, or heavy machinery? How long are Jane residents returning from lunch going to be stared down by workers on break?

Gently put, most current MacMurray students will not graduate before Jane renovation is completed. Many Jane students have complaints about construction already. Amanda complains of the loud noises early in the morning and Cara will be glad when all the dust and dirt is gone. Nearly everyone complains about how long it is taking for the work to get done. It is the opinion of some that the workers are half-hearted, spending most of their time on break. Room #6 in Jane had something else to say about the workers: "Stinky!" "Tell them to take a shower!" said Rob. Rob Lee said, "They need to get some lady workers!"

What is getting done at Jane Hall? Guido and myself talked with the workers (on break) and they were very helpful, if not alarmingly chill.

It was revealed that Phase I, supposed to have been completed October 1, is the first of five phases. Phase I, alone, is costing $400,000. This includes improvements on the deck, plumbing, guest housing, drive, and lounge. The lounge is getting completely redone with new windows and carpet among other things. The architects behind the bulldozers and dust are working with a budget. As far as the workers know, funds for the further phases have yet to be found, so there are likely to be breaks in- between phases as money is being gathered.

Future plans for Jane include doors leading to the deck and such blessings as a usable kitchen and new doors throughout the dorm. However, later phases will be bringing Jane Hall new wiring, a sprinkler system, new windows in both wings, and Central Air, so that those annoying radiators can be laid to rest. I would be happy if someone would just get rid of all the dead roaches in the basement.

While annoyed by certain things, some Jane residents are positive. Sam is pleased with the improvements in the lobby and Leslie and Betty are very appreciative of the hard work being done. Phil said the renovation was just beautiful. He thinks it is a heck of an improvement, important because students ought to look to the future. Resident Director Bob said he thought the students were a bit frustrated with the earlier demolition, but are feeling better now that improvements can be seen. Jeff who was nearby and itching to speak said that in the long run it would show the school was doing something for the students.

This journalist thinks it would do everyone in Jane good to keep their spirits bright, like Dean, who said, "It's cool or something."

Until next time this is J. P. Ziller reminding you to keep one foot in fresh cement and a fist in wet paint!

Lemley and Snell To Join Mac Staff

Two new assistant professors have joined the MacMurray College faculty for the second semester of the 93-94 academic year, according to Dean Goulding.

New faculty are Dr. Patricia A. Lemley, assistant professor of special education of the hearing impaired, and Thomas V. Snell, assistant professor of business. both are full-time teachers.

Pam Blue Memorial Tree Will Be Dedicated on Saturday

A tree will be dedicated at MacMurray College Saturday, Oct. 16, in memory of Pamela Lynn Blue, a Mac student who died in her dormitory room Feb. 18, 1993.

The dedication ceremony will be held at 1:30 p.m. around the tree which has been planted on the lawn in front of Rutledge Hall, the residence hall where Pam lived on campus.

The Red Sunset maple has been given to the college by a group from Winchester including Linda McElwrath, Winchester High School principal; Sharon Clayton of the high school staff and Rev. James McClarey Jr., pastor of the Winchester United Methodist Church. Pam lived for several months in the home of Ms. McElwrath and attended the Winchester church.

A commemorative plaque will be placed by the tree.

Participants in the dedication ceremony will include the Winchester friends of Pam; Rev. Jonathan Dixon, and members of BASIC (Brothers and Sisters in Christ), one of the organizations of which Pam was a member.

Members of Pam's family and other friends also will be present.

Pam, who was 20 at the time of her death, was the daughter of Mike and Mary Johnson Blue of Raleigh. IL and was a 1990 graduate of Eldorado High School. She was a sophomore majoring in music.

The memorial tree dedication will take place during the 1993 Family Weekend at MacMurray.

MacMurray Promotes Faculty Member

Five members of the MacMurray College faculty have been promoted to higher ranks starting wit the 1993-94 academic year, according to Dr. Jim Goulding, dean of the college.

Dr. Robert Seufert was promoted from associate professor to professor of English and theatre arts, Assistant Professors Mary L. Anthony and Martha "Marti" Templin, both in nursing, and Dr. Charles "Chuck" Blose, psychology, were promoted to associate professorships. Merl Dunham, instructor of computer science/systems manager, was named an assistant professor.

See You at the Pole.

This nation wide event was started by a group of students in Texas, who gathered around there flagpole to pray for their school. Afterwards, these same students were severely reprimanded for doing so. Since then, Christian students have gathered around their flagpoles on September 15, to pray for their school, their instructors, their classmates, and themselves. Pray for God to make their school the institution that He wants it to be, is the main purpose of S.Y.A.T.P. However, this is also spiritual warfare. It is time to buckle on the sword of the spirit (Eph. 6:17) and go to battle in the name of God. Prayer is truly the mightiest weapon that we possess. So join us in our battle! I'll see you at the pole! Wednesday, September 15, at 7:00a.m. at the flagpole in front of Rutledge Hall.

"It's Wet!"

By John Paul Ziller

As I stood in the unceasing rains being poured from the blanket of gloom in the sky, my feet were getting extremely wet. This isn't Seattle, the book of Genesis, or a tropical jungle. This is MacMurray, and the rains are constant. Our campus, as a result, is threatened by an ominous flood. Intrigued by whispers of flooded dorms and new bodies of water forming on campus, I donned my rain gear and set my sights for Michalson, Norris, and Kendall, the reported locations of the worst damage. The brook was certainly bountiful, and just beyond, the water was unlimited. I scanned the liquid expanse for a crossing point, but was hard pressed. Some time later I arrived a Michalson.

I waded through the appalling waste, observing the damages and asking residents to share their feelings on the abundance of floodwater having entered their lives so unexpectedly. Jason in Michalson told us, "It's wet!" A waterlogged resident in the basement of Norris wants someone to, "Fix the bleeping leaks!" April in Kendall bought her first umbrella, and Rolanda is tired of the little ugly green bugs that are always hanging out in their rooms. Jeff in Norris has had to take the carpet up in his room due to water, and paint is coming off his wall. Kristy in Michalson was not so downhearted. She just likes to play and swim in the water. I asked where her favorite place on campus to swim was, and she replied, "The creek of course."

The southside of Norris's basement is flooding, and the lounge room in the basement of Kendall is under a 1/4 inch of floodwater. Laundry procedures were halted, but are now back in full motion. The football field was under three feet of water and the rest of MacMurray is slowly filling up.

There are rumors that the ceiling in a third floor Rutledge room is warping dangerously and word has it a third floor Jane room is leaking into a room on the second floor. My ears have also heard it uttered that the Chapel is taking its share of water. What all is true about the devastating waters all about us? What of those crazy Blackstock guys always trying to fish out their window?

As Rolanda said, "The floods have come to haunt MacMurray."

I think, however, we ought to keep in our heart the spirit of Lisa in Kendall, who said, "As long as there's a rainbow afterwards, I don't mind."

This is John Paul reminding you, until brighter days, keep one foot in a puddle and a fist in the rain.

In Loving Memory of Professor Winter

Professor Winter had been a member of the faculty at MacMurray College for more than 30 years and was named chairman of the foreign language department in 1970.

Mr. Winter was brought by former president Gordon E. Michalson in 1961.

Mr. Winter received a bachelor's degree with honors in French and a master's degree including Latin as a minor language, both from Exeter College at Oxford, England where he lived in the Maison Francaise, a cultural house where French was spoken at all times. He was an accomplished organist, receiving diplomas in harmony and performing organ from the Conservatoire de Strasbourg, France.

While in Strasbourg, where he lived from 1954 - 1961, Mr. Winter taught English, was editor of a French student newspaper and received several scholarships, studying French philology and stylistics. He was also a regular organist at the Lutheran Church of St. Nicolas-the Church of Albert Schweitzer.

Mr. Winter founded and co-edited the Bulletin des Jeunes Romanistes, a research review for romance philology and contemporary literature. He returned to Strasburg University in 1969 - 1970 to teach a course in translation.

At MacMurray College, Mr. Winter presided over a three week J-Term faculty workshop to develop and implement a revision of the general education requirements for the new liberal arts curriculum in 1975. He was a dormitory head resident to 1966-69 and conducted three foreign study tours to Europe. He was faculty representative to the Board of Trustees, secretary-treasurer of the MacMurray College chapter of the American Association of University Professors and coordinator of the Campus United Fund for four years.

MAC TRADITIONS

''Axe Murderer?''

One of Jeanne Dixon's predictions has been passed down through the years because all of the details apply to MacMurray. She predicted that in a small midwestern town with two small colleges and a state hospital, a number of murders would take place. These murders would occur on a college campus where two residence halls, one of which has pillars, face each other. The residence hall facing east will be the target of an escaped mental patient, who on a rainy Thursday in April, will take an axe and murder half of a floor before being discovered. Fortunately or unfortunately, which ever way you want to look at it, this prediction has not been realized YET!!

''Blue Lady''

A freshman resident of Old Main Hall was jilted by her date for Homecoming. She returned to her residence hall to find her date there with her roommate. She killed them both, and then committed suicide by jumping through her window. The ''Blue Lady'' is believed to walk the campus wearing the blue gown that she planned to wear to Homecoming. It is also believed that if she hands a man a black rose, he will soon die.

''Chapel - Library''

The fact that the chapel and library were built to face each other with the doors aligned exactly has raised some suspicions. Many people suspect that the Pfeifers place some undocumented stipulations on these two buildings. The fact that nothing has ever been built between the two buildings is believed to symbolize the Pfeiers' ''Endless Love'' for one another . . . with nothing ever to come between them.

Green Ribbon

MacMurray College has a long standing tradition of welcoming the new women in a ceremony known as Green Ribbon. Each new woman is assigned a ''big sister'' from among the upper-class women. The ''bigs'' then write to their ''little sisters'' over the course of the summer to explain Green Ribbon and offer an initial welcome.

The actual ceremony involves a green ribbon, hence the name, being tied loosely around the neck of each new woman by her ''big sister.'' The ''littles'' then wear these ribbons from the time of the ceremony, on Sunday night, until Wednesday night. At that time, the new women burn their ribbons and are officially welcomed into the heart and arms of MacMurray.

The event is typically a solemn one, and everyone, both ''bigs'' and .''littles'' are requested to wear all or mostly white. Often, Green Ribbon is a way to meet your own classmates and to get acquainted with some returning women as well.

''Michalson Monster''

The ''Michalson Monster,'' formerly known as the ''Harker Monster'' lived on the roof of Harker Hall. When Harker Hall was torn down, the ''Monster'' followed the women down the campus to Michalson House (which had just been completed), leaving his footprints on the sidewalk along the way. The ''Michalson Monster'' presently resides on the roof of Michalson House, and protects the women as they walk around the campus. It has become a tradition for the freshmen to repaint the footprints of the ''Michalson Monster'' each year.

MacMurray To Have Christmas Vespers

MacMurray will hold Christmas vespers, a traditional candlelighting service followed by a dinner, Sunday, Dec. 12, according to Rev. Jonathan Dixon. Both are open to the public.

The candlelighting service will be held at 4:30 p.m. in Annie Merner Chapel. The dinner will follow at 6 p.m. in McClelland Dining Hall.

College students, faculty and staff will join Rev. Dixon and President Edward J. Mitchell in conducting the vespers service. The chapel will be appropriately decorated fro the Christmas service.

The service will open with preludes by an instrumental ensemble and Prof. Jay Peterson and a choral introit by the MacMurray choir under the direction of Prof. Richard Hanson.

The choir will perform anthems including Brahms' "Lo, How a Rose E'er Blooming," the West Indian spiritual "The Virgin Mary Had a Baby Boy" and "And the Glory of the Lord" from Handel's "Messiah."

Scripture lessons and Christmas readings will be given by MacMurray students Corey VanRaalte, Carlos Hernandes, Rolanda McDonald and Nancy Lawrence, and Dr. Mitchell.

The ceremony of lights will be led by President Mitchell. The congregation will join him in a litany of dedication, then, beginning from the Christ candle at the altar, the light will move through the entire assembly as all join in singing "Silent Night."

Other traditional Christmas hymns will be sung during the service, which will close with "Joy to the World" after the blessing by Rev. Dixon.

Altogether about 50 MacMurray students will be involved in the Christmas vespers service. They include students serving on the Vespers committee along with college faculty and staff, plus readers, candlelighters, ushers and choir members.

Members of three campus organizations, Christians in Action, Belle Lettres and Holy Fools, are participating in the service and will decorate the chapel.

THE VESPERS DINNER at 6 p.m. in the dining hall will follow the candlelighting service.

A roasted, 20-pound turkey will be the centerpiece on each table, according to David Caffery. There'll also be an array of dinner "trimmings" and dessert.

Dinner tickets are $5.50 per person; $3.50 for children 12 and under. Tickets may be purchase through Friday, Dec. 10, at the Student Life Office.

Madrigals

Great Madrigals at MAC!

The MacMurray Concert Choir is proud to present the 26th Madrigal Dinner Series on December 3rd and 4th at 7:30 p.m. in McClelland Dining Hall. The dinners celebrate Christmas and 16th century tradition in a most regal way. The program includes the witty rhyme of the Narrator (Marty Templin), entertainment by the jester, singing by the strolling minstrels (Jennifer Brickman, Jennifer Ruder, and Bob Behrends), musical fanfares by the trumpeters (Matthew Deaning and Susan Urbance), a guest performance by the MacMurray Renaissance Dance Troupe and singing by the Lords & Ladies of the head table, Josh Cox and Erin Rettke, Richard Ott, and Joan Womack, Thomas Atkins, and Heide Gillette, David Shaffer and Mary Rodgers, Nathan Carls, Sherri Walters, Jeff Davids Meyer, and Carrie Monger, Prentice Southwell, and Jill Bondelli, and Robert Knickman, and Lynda Kritag. As in the past, the meal includes a full four course offering of soup, salad, roast prime ribs, green beans with walnuts, carrots aubratin, baked potatoes, scones, dessert, wassail, coffee, and tea.

Tickets for this Christmas celebration go on sale Monday, November 8, 1993 in the Book Store. Reservations for faculty and staff are $13.00. MacMurray students, upon showing an ID, may purchase reservations for $10.00, and pay with cash or meal tickets. General public reservations are given first.

Where Everybody Knows The Competition...

Football

The MacMurray Football team ended their season with a record of six wins and four losses. This record was very close to Head Coach Mike Hensley's goal of seven and three. Overall, Coach Hensley felt the season was tough, but he also felt that the players did a good job.

Coach Hensley has a unique way of setting goals for his team. At the beginning of the season, the players write out personal goals and put them in an envelope. At the end of the season, the team gets together and discusses these goals and how to improve next season.

For various reasons, this season has been a memorable one for the MacMurray team. First, this year marked the tenth year that football has been apart of the MacMurray College program. Coach Hensley has been the coach for seven of the ten years. Second, according to Hensley, the team showed character throughout the season. After a three week period in which the team lost four games and Coach Hensley had to deal with the death of his father, the team and staff pulled together and won the last three games of the season.

Next season, Coach Hensley plans on focusing several aspects. For the team as a whole, he wants to work on academics, self concept, winning attitude, and strength. He feels confident with the offense because he has ten returning starters. On the defense side, he will be working with young talent since he lost nine of his starters. Coach Hensley would like to see some improvements on the playing field, especially with the seating capacity. Overall, Coach Hensley has a positive outlook for this next season.

Men's Soccer

The 1993 MacMurray Men's Soccer season started out as a challenge for the team. After last season four of last year's starters graduated, Coach Killen had to compensate for this loss by getting his young team into shape. To help facilitate this rebuilding, the team set goals that they wanted to reach this season; these goals started out at the local level and worked on up to the nationals. Along with these team goals, coach Killen wanted to keep alive the rich soccer tradition that has been established at MacMurray College.

At the local level, the team was very successful. The Mayor's Cup, a game which is held every year at Illinois College, was won by the team. The MacMurray team has won this game eight out of nine years. Along with this winning streak, the most memorable game this season was the victory over Washington University, who was ranked first in the regionals and eighth nationally.

Coach Killen had a personal memory this season. He won his one hundredth career game which was against Webster University. The team paid tribute to their coach by awarding him with an autographed ball which was presented to him after the game.

Overall, Coach Killen and the team was pleased with this seasons playing, but sadly, they will be losing Senior Pedro Rodriguez. Rodriguez was voted by the team as this years MVP. He has also been recognized nationally for his talent. In 1990, 1991 and 1992, Rodriguez was honored as First Team All Midwest NSCAA All-American.

Even with the loss of rodriguez, Coach Killen has high hopes for next season. He feels that there is an immense amount of talent among next years team to keep up with tradition.

Arts of England and Its Neighbors
By: Shelby Saville

"I felt like I just lived a lifetime in 17 days."

This is was a phrase exclaimed by more than one MacMurray students upon arriving home from the January tour "Arts of England and Its Neighbors."

16 students and 12 non students were part of this life journey under direction of Dr. Philip Decker and assistant tour leader, Dr. Elizabeth Crowley.

The group stayed in London for 17 days and toured many historical sights, museums and attended 9 theater performances.

Decker said that the tour was originally just a theater tour. "In the four weeks of J-term we would attend 23 plays," said Decker. The students could sight see or go to museums, but they had to do it on their own.

After the death of Eugene Laurent, the trip's originator, Decker decided to do a more general arts tour. "With no more theater majors at MacMurray, I wanted to give the trip a more broader appeal," said Decker.

Decker says that the history in London is as important to a student's education as the theater.

"The trip really makes history come alive," said Decker. "The students get to actually see things for themselves that before they've only heard about."

Just a few of the historical places the group visited in London were Westminster Abbey, Houses of Parliament, the Tower of London and St. Paul's Cathedral.

Mollee Schumaker, a MacMurray junior, said that she enjoyed the tour of the Houses of Parliament. "Our tour guide was great,"' said Schumaker. "We got to pretend that we were voting on a bill."

The students and non-students also had many full day trips out of London to places such as Dover, Canterbury, Stonehenge, Wells and Stratford-upon-Avon.

"'Dover Castle was one of my favorites," said senior MacMurray student, Tom Harris. This is the second year that Harris has taken the England tour. "The castles themselves are artwork. I could envision what life was like back then."

Harris also said that he was fascinated with the secret tunnels inside the White cliffs of Dover. These cliffs were used during both of the world wars. "I was infatuated with the tunnels. It was almost as if there was a little city inside the cliffs." said Harris.

These tunnels are called Hellfire Corner and they consist of three different levels of tunnels. The students walked through some of the tunnel visited the communication center and Aircraft Operations rooms that were used during the second world war. Some parts of the tunnels date back to the Napoleonic wars.

Junior Nikki Cathorall enjoyed seeing Stratford-upon-Avon. "Being an English minor, I was really interested in seeing the sights such as Ann Hathaway's cottage and Mary Arden's house that were connected with Shakespeare. Just being inside the houses with the thatch roofs and stone floors gave a real feeling of the time period," said Cathorall. "I'm glad I saw it, but I didn't really enjoy Shakespeare's birthplace because the furniture was all replicas of what he used. Nothing was real except the floor."

Cathorall, however, finds that seeing the sights for herself helps her in classes. "the other day we were watching a movie called 'The Age of Shakespeare' and most of the sights in Stratford-Upon-Avon and London that they showed in the movie I felt I understood better because I have now been there.

Besides learning about history, the students learned a great deal about theater by seeing productions and by attending a tour of The Royal Opera House.

This year the group say productions of "Macbeth," "Les Miserables," "Medea," "She Stoops to Conquer," the ballet of "Romeo and Juliet," and "Carousel," just to name a few.

Kim Dutton, a junior minoring in drama, enjoyed the plays overall. "I enjoyed seeing 'Medea' because this was a play I had read previously for class," said Dutton. "It was wonderful to see it in actual production."

Schumaker said that she enjoyed seeing the ballet of "Romeo and Juliet." "I had never seen a ballet before," said Schumaker. "I am glad I saw one because I don't think I would have ever gone to a ballet on my own."

Cathorall said that she also enjoyed seeing a ballet. "The stage, setting, music and dancing all combined made it a very powerful performance."

Harris said that he found the tour of The Royal Opera House the best tour of the whole trip. "Seeing the tour before the ballet, made it seem more meaningful when we were watching it," said Harris. "For example, you knew that the people who were sword fighting were actually fighting with real swords."

Besides learning the history of the Royal Opera House, the people on the tour saw the practice rooms, the royal box and the costumes that were to be worn to the ballet they would be seeing that night.

Decker places great importance on all of the activities done while in London.

"I wanted the students to learn that reading a play, looking at a print of a painting, and looking at a picture of a building is different than seeing the actual play, painting and building for themselves," said Decker. "I am hoping this will make students have the interest to go to other plays and other places."

Decker says that besides the culture of London, there is more that is learned by students.

"I believe it gives students a great feeling of self-confidence to get around on their own in a foreign country," said Decker. "In the beginning they may find it frightening, but finally they realize that it is easy. I think that gives them extra confidence."

Cathorall said that getting around London did just that for her. "At first I didn't want to do anything without the group, but after a few days I realized that I could get to just about anywhere in London on my own," said Cathorall. "One day I went to Piccadilly Circus, did some shopping on my own and later met some friends for lunch. I was pretty impressed that I was by myself and didn't get lost. I felt like a whole new world had been opened up for me."

The trip is not just open to students. This year 9 non-students attended the tour.

"I believe that the non-students and the students enjoyed each other very much," said Decker. "There was great interaction between everyone."

Harris said that he thought it was good to mix students and non-students together. "It was neat to hear different views on London," Harris said.

Dutton also said that she enjoyed having the non-students along. "They were a lot of fun," said Dutton. "I think they learned as much from us as I feel we learned from them. They seemed very interested to hear our views on the plays and the sights we saw."

Decker said that the trip is a overall learning experience for everyone. "This tour gives people a greater appreciation of art in general," said Decker. "It is an important part of life."

If anyone in the public would like to take part of next year's January tour, contact Dr. Decker at 479-7050

Euromacs

The 1994 EUROMACS

Baad, a tiny mountain village high up in the Austrian Alps; Uelzen, an 800-year old county seat near the North Sea coast; and Berlin, the biggest metropolis of Germany—these were the three stops for the students who participated in the overseas seminar of the Department of Political Science: Marty Bennett, David DiVito, Sara Kendall, Scott Lindahl, Lawrence Obin, David Searby, Daniel Spomar, Andrew Swigart, and Wesley Uldrich. Frank Fuhrig, a reporter for the Jacksonville Journal Courier, came along to assist our tour leader, Dr. Wolf D. Fuhrig, particularly when we needed a second interpreter.

In Baad, Dr. Fuhrig had us enrolled in a nine-day course with Outward Bound, an international organization devoted to challenging young adults in outdoor sports, such as mountaineering and skiing, as well as environmental and social studies. We were the only Americans in the lodge among a large contingent of Germans. Every Mac student either learned how to ski or improved his skills. Nobody quit.

At 200 kilometers per hour, we took a brand-new Intercity Express to Berlin. There we focused on the city's political and economic development since the fall of the infamous Wall. A luncheon at the German parliament (the Reichstag), a briefing at the old American embassy, a tour of three outstanding art museums, and a performance of Humperdinck's opera "Hansel and Gretel" highlighted our visit.

In Uelzen, we were hosted by one of the city's academic preparatory high schools and stayed in students; private homes. That greatly helped us appreciate their way of life and their high standard of living. We studied the German educational system, including the dual track approach to vocational education where students get on-the job-experience while they are still in school.

The 1994 Euromacs had a fun time even though it was a very demanding course. You can make it, but you got to keep up with Dr. Fuhrig's fast pace, from early morning to late at night.

Spain

Early in the morning on January 6, 1994, the ''Ibero Macs'' landed in Madrid, Spain, beginning a seventeen-day tour of Spain, Portugal and Northern Africa. Spain was in the midst of an unusually cold winter, but this did not daunt the MacMurray group as it explored the major historical and cultural sites (the National Palace, the Plaza del Sol, the Plaza de Madrid and the artistic treasures of El Prado and the Reina Sofia Museum of Modern Art). Everyone adjusted readily to the unique social life of the capital with its emphasis on dining, relaxing, and enjoying one's friends.

Our tour then took us west, up through the Guadarrama Mountains where the snow made the walled, medieval city of Avila take on a quiet, almost ethereal quality, consistent perhaps with the fact that this was home to Spain's great mystical poet, Santa Teresa de Jesus.

We also explored Toledo, one of Spain's great attractions. It sits on the side of a low mountain, walled, cobble-stoned with labyrinthine streets and beautiful. Everyone explored their first medieval cathedral, awesome with its Gothic spires, gold altars, intricate woodwork and rich with the works of el Greco, Goya and Velazquez.

Our goal was to move west to Lisbon on the Atlantic Ocean, but we stopped for an evening in the hilly interior of Portugal at a small town, Hospital do Oliveira. It seemed as if we had stepped outside the modern world into this quiet, isolated place where people still believe in werewolves and who knows what else!

We arrived in Lisbon, Portugal's capital, after stopping in Coimbra, the university town. Lisbon afforded us the opportunity to explore a medieval castle high atop the modern city and to taste the exquisite Portuguese cuisine while wearing our disguises (fake noses and mustaches provided by Dr. Hoff and Dr. Szczepanski). Some of us went on to small coastal resorts to explore and to see the amazing villas of royal families from all over the world built along the Atlantic coast.

We crossed back into Spain, passing into the ''Moorish'' southern region of Spain. There's no way to describe our next stop, Sevilla. There's so much to see and so much to experience. ''Sevillanos'' party until early in the morning (every night of the week!) and so we explored the amazing Giralda Tower, the old and most recent sites of World Fairs, and went to see flamingo dancers, amidst the 24-hour-street-party atmosphere of this beautiful city.

Then we began what probably was for most of us who hail from Illinois the most memorable part of our trip, crossing the Strait of Gibraltar (where we spotted dolphins and one lone whale) to enter Africa. For once, everyone was speechless as we passed through the stunning Atlas Mountains on our way to exotic-sounding cities such as Fez, Casablanca, Rabat and, perhaps most memorable, Tangiers where, on our last day in Africa, we rode camels along the Mediterranean coast.

Then it was back to Spain to visit Granada with a visit to the Alhambra, the jewel of Arabic architecture with its breath-taking gardens.

Our last stop was Alicante where the most adventurous in the group got up early to watch the sun come up over the Costa Brava on the Mediterranean before we returned to Madrid to catch our flight back to New York City.

Certainly we carried with us memories that we will never forget (the party in Hospital do Oliveira with HBO man, riding on top of the double-decker bus in Sevilla, the ''medina'' in Fez, the ''paella'' in Madrid, Amy's role as ''social director,'' the roses from Luis, and, last but not least, our talkative guide, John, ''how does Cosmos do it?'') and the friendships that were born during this extraordinary trip.

CUTLINES

THE THIRD ANNUAL Black History Month celebration was held Feb. 25-27 by the MacMurray Student NAACP Chapter. Chapter officers for 1993-94 are, from left: Vice President Jeremiah Willis, President Eric Council, Secretary Rolanda McDonald, Treasurer Terrell Alexander and assistant Secretary Christie Linear. Highlight of the weekend celebration was a Friday evening banquet at the Blackhawk restaurant in Jacksonville.

AN APPRECIATION AWARD from the MacMurray Student NAACP Chapter is presented to Tracy Ambrose (right), an organizer and first president of the chapter, by 1993-1994 President Eric Council. The presentation took place during the chapter's 1994 Black History Month banquet Feb. 25.

Blood Drive

MacMurray wins prize in blood-giving contest

MacMurray College has drawn first blood in a new competition with crosstown rival Illinois College.

MacMurray will be awarded the first Blood Cup, which will be given each year to the college that recruits more donors during its annual blood drive.

The competition was the idea of Paul Hendricks, donor resources manager for the Central Illinois Community Blood Bank. The blood bank provides blood and blood products to hospitals in central Illinois, including Passavant Area Hospital.

He was hoping that the competition would help recruit new members from the two Jacksonville colleges.

"We don't get as many (repeat donors) from the two colleges," Mr. Hendricks said. "We hope they'll take this experience back to where they set down roots and continue giving."

MacMurray collected 114 units of blood, and Illinois College collected 74. Both totals were substantially more than last year, when MacMurray collected 69 and Illinois College 48. The MacMurray drive was directed by the Phi Nu service organization. Illinois College's was directed by Alpha Phi Omega.

"This is super," Mr. Hendricks said. "It's taken a lot of work on a lot of people's parts."

Mr. Hendricks will present the gold loving cup to Amy Christensen of Phi Nu at a luncheon today.

"We want to let the community know what a good job these students are doing for the community," Mr. Hendricks said.

Yearbook

A Letter From the Editor

As the editor of the yearbook, I would like to thank everybody who helped put this yearbook together. Without my small staff of one, Kristen Cox, it would of been an even harder battle to get this thing done. Also my yearbook advisor, Kris Tollefson, was always helping me get pictures, doing layouts or just giving me some type of direction. The same with Joe Bryant.

Kris was putting a lot of faith in me to get this book done. I was determined that no matter how long or how many hour it took, I was not going to let her down.

Those members on my silent staff were always full of ideas and encouragement also. After awhile I am sure they wished they weren't my friends, so they didn't have to put up with my constant complaining!

I would just like everybody to know that I appreciate their help. I hope the yearbook has improved in your eyes. I promise next years will be even better. My main goal for next year is to get the whole campus involved. That being dorms, organizations, class photos, stories and candids. I want everybody to remember everything that Mac is about, not just those few pictures or stories that the staff was able to scrounge up. After all MacMurray is Where Everybody Knows Your Name....

Sincerely,
Nikki Cathorall
